TONOPAH INVITES ITS NEIGHBORS

TONOPAH will celebrate Independence Day this year and do it in the manner which characterized its good roads day—with the genuine spirit of the Tonopah way. Now, we make this announcement in good season, so that Goldfield, Round Mountain, Manhattan, Millers, Millett, Volcano and other places within speaking distance, such as Mina, Sodaville and the remote Bullfrog, may not have to go to the trouble of making preparations themselves, but all are invited to come here and Tonopah will do the rest.

Let all of southern Nevada make this city their Mecca on July 4. We will be able to accommodate and entertain all comers. Within a few days a general outline of the program will be given out and if it is impossible to crowd all the fun and ceremony into one day, we can extend the time a little.

EXPLANATIONS IN ORDER

IN THE 1912 campaign it was possible for the Democrats to make many statements regarding the tariff without challenge from the average voter. There had been a protective tariff for sixteen years, and there was no opportunity for the younger generation of voters to understand the real meaning of conditions under a low tariff. Even the statement that the tariff was responsible for the high cost of living, therefore, seemed to be accepted by a large number of voters.

Even the Democratic voters, however, are not likely to listen to such an argument in patience during the next campaign. There will have to be some explanation of the deluge of imports that threw so many workmen out of employment before the European war began. There will have to be some explanation as to the manner in which the country might meet the deluge of imports after the war is over.—Walnut Cove (N. C.) News.

THE TYPE OF REAL NEVADA MANHOOD

THERE are all kinds of men, at least all kinds of masculine, featherless bipeds, but it required a traveling man from Denver, who knows the people of this and other states, to size up the real man in a brief, succinct sentence. It goes. Here it is: "He, oh, he's a southern Nevada man, a real chuckwalla, a proper desert rat. He can preach a sermon, deal the bank or find a mine. He can have a parched throat without complaining, or he can pull up his belt another notch when the grub gives out. He can endure freezing or burning. But, best of all, he can stand a hell of a lot of luxury."

McKEEVER, THE PEEVER

PROF. WM. McKEEVER of a freshwater university back in Kansas declares that neither Shakespeare nor Byron has a message for the present age. What rot! The Bard of Avon has a message for all people in all times, while Lord Byron's apostrophe to the ocean alone gives him an open wire to all hearts in all ages. What will McKeever give to this age or to any other? Let English Bards and Scotch Reviewers be re-read and the McKeever person will be suppressed. It is injudicious even to link his name with these two great moulders of thought and sentiment. He is as English Bards narrates, the southern end of the comparison which reads: "From soaring Southey down to grovelling Stott." Stott McKeever, you have yet to hollow out your niche. Let those who chiseled theirs out in the crowning period of English poetry enjoy theirs in peace and quietude. You are not even an also ran. You feed on Kansas corn rather than the manna of the gods. You are nothing. Get out of the street or a Ford will run you down.

FLYING IN FACE OF THE DEVIL

THERE is an old saying that runs: "Flying in the face of Providence." But it is not Providence that menaces the 875 passengers on the Transylvania which sailed from New York after news had been received of the sinking of the Lusitania. Perhaps these people did wrong in taking passage after the warning they received, but they were not on pleasure bent. Stern exigencies called the majority of them to England. Perhaps a torpedo will be flung from the undersea and these men, women and children will meet the fate of those aboard the Lusitania. Their murder will be lamented and Berlin will again rejoice. Meanwhile the palm for watchful waiting should no longer be deferred in its presentation.

CHINA AND JAPAN

THE reports concerning the strained relations between China and Japan could not be more contradictory if actual hostilities were in progress. On the one hand, we are informed that China is preparing to put up a military resistance, and, on the other, that she has decided on an unconditional surrender. From yet another source comes the word that fighting has begun. There is no confirmation of the rumor that the United States has tendered its kindly offices with a view to arbitrating the dispute, and Washington maintains official silence on the subject, says the San Francisco Chronicle.

About the only reasonably certain statement is that Japan has forwarded an ultimatum to Peking. It has been a matter of general belief that the price of Japan's assistance to the allies in driving Germany out of her Chinese possessions was a perfectly free hand in China. If such an understanding was arrived at without so much as a consultation with the United States, this nation has a just grievance. We are one of the powers committed to the policy of the open door in China, and, though not called upon to interfere in any redistribution of Chinese territory, we are concerned to know whether the attempted suzerainty of any foreign power will lead to the abrogation of that policy. Japan appears to have been too eager for conquest to suit even her British ally. At least one newspaper, the London Daily News, does not hesitate to liken the Japanese demands to those of Austria on Serbia, and to say that it will be one of the most bitter tragedies of the war if a nation whose independence and integrity is guaranteed by the Anglo-Japanese alliance is despoiled by one of the signatories.

The first woman in Nevada to hold office as county commissioner is Mrs. Peter Dory of Lander, appointed to fill the unexpired term of her deceased husband. If Governor Boyle's selection proves a well chosen one, it will give the suffragettes an entering wedge in the state. The experiment will be watched with interest.

Of course the colonel was expected to say what he did about the motive that inspired the sinking of the Lusitania and the slaughter of forty babies in addition to the twelve hundred other non-combatants and neutrals, and he said it with the Rooseveltian emphasis which carries conviction.

There are some novel innovations made in orthography and pronunciation by the press agencies since the outbreak of the war. One of them is changing Serbian to Serbian. This is equivalent to calling a Slav a Slah. Give the allies a chance.

"If war is hell," said a Tonopah when he read of the slaughter of the innocents on the Lusitania, "a cowardly, terrorizing administration is super-hell."

Remember the Lusitania. Likewise the Gallicia.

Especially resistant to shock, strain and vibration, the Ford is the sturdiest, most durable car in the world. Vanadium steel, heat-treated by the Ford process, accounts for the strength and light weight of the Ford car. Strong, light, simple and efficient, the Ford gives service and satisfaction to more than 700,000 owners every day, at an average cost of two cents a mile for operation and maintenance.

Buyers will share in profits if we sell at retail 300,000 new Ford cars between August 1914 and August 1915.
